

Access to diverse sources of media and information are vital elements for any democracy to flourish. I am writing to express my concern over efforts to loosen media ownership regulation. I strongly support the current regulations, which protect the American public's access to a variety of information.